Nchimunya is a Zambia boy born on November 5th 2012 at St Francis Hospital in Katete in a family of 3 boys. His first school was Jemamu Christina Academy in Serenje. In 2019 he started Grade 1. He’s currently in Grade 4 at Wela School, Lusaka.

Nchimunya developed interest in story writing at the age of 9. His Parents, Brenda and Misheck and the brothers have been so encouraging. He likes encouraging fellow African children to read and write stories. This improves vocabulary, breaks barrier to communication and improves academic performance. Africa has many untold stories. Nchimunya is the bridge in disseminating the information across fellow kids.

Nchimunya went to Levy Park shopping mall with his dad, mum and brother to buy a laptop.

The family went to a shop known as Mobile City in the mall.

Nchimunya left his parents and walked around the shop to find items that would interest him.

The shop had so many laptops, chargers and phones.

Then, he saw a tablet for kids.

"Dad...dad...please buy this tablet for me"

He asked.

"Nchimunya, I will buy the tablet once I save up enough money for it," his dad said. Nchimunya wiped his tears though he still looked sad.

The shop attendant packed the laptop they had bought and they headed back home.

"Dad, mum am so sorry for bothering you at the shop. I know you will buy me a tablet when you get the money,"
Nchimunya said.
His parents smiled at him.

Nchimunya shut down the laptop to play
"Hide and Seek" with his younger brother.

CADBURY'S IN OUR OWN WORDS READER SERIES

Children's books are mirrors and windows. A good book serves as a window to an unfamiliar world, and as a mirror for self-reflection.

While children around the world see themselves reflected in books, African children don't — not often enough. The books African children read should reflect their realities — and at the same time appeal to children around the world.

Cadbury's In Our Own Words Reader Series is a creative campaign to ignite a love for reading among kids under 10 years old by sharing modern contemporary African stories. In Our Own Words rekindles the glorious days of 'Hekaya za Babu' stories told by the evening fire or in our kitchens.

These stories ignite a love for reading in children by enabling access to modern, relevant and relatable African story books.

This book is part of Cadbury's "In Our Own Words" Reader Series published by Sisi Afrika Books. It is a library of 150 original children's story books co-authored with writers across the continent.

The books are available on our website, for anyone to download, read and enjoy.
